PEOPLE WE HELP

WHEN THERE IS NO SAFE WATER, CHILDREN AND WOMAN ARE THE MOST AFFECTED

Meet Jolly who, together with the PAH team, worked at constructing a well in Joppa.

"I realized that the lack of water hurts women and children the most, as it is they who have to fetch water. This must change" says Jolly. Our priority is to increase the qualifications, knowledge and skills of people whom we help.

THE RESPONSE TO FAMINE MUST BE COMPLEX

Meet Nyamed, 18 and a mother to a child. Nyamad lives in Koch, the region where famine was announced in February 2017. In response to this crisis, we supplied tools, seeds and training. "I am grateful for the help, especially for the long-handled hoe. When I use it, my back doesn't hurt" says Nyamad.

THE LOCAL COMMUNITY IS ENGAGED IN OUR WORK FROM THE VERY BEGINNING

To be efficient in our help, we are constantly monitoring and evaluating our activities. We ask the local communities how they perceive our help and what is most needed. The surveys are conducted by trained personnel from such local communities, often using tablets, which significantly shorten the preparation time. The collected data allows us to help even more efficiently.

"Just remember to put your respondents at ease" says Martin from the PAH team during a training for new pollsters.
